Aadhaar based biometric (fingerprint, iris) and OTP authentication is being used to identify beneficiaries in various schemes of the State Government in order to deliver the benefits of government welfare schemes to the eligible beneficiaries. However, some issues are being faced during fingerprint and iris based biometric verification in particular where beneficiaries are old age persons or they are involved in labour activities. To overcome this issue, Department of Information Technology & Communication, GoR has recently launched Aadhaar based face authentication facility.

Aadhaar based face authentication provides better success rate in comparison to fingerprint and iris based biometric authentication and does not require procurement of any particular device as it can be performed using the camera available in the mobile device only.

Further, Department of Information Technology & Communication has developed a generic Aadhaar based face authentication android mobile application, which can be integrated and used by any application of State Government.

Therefore, all the Departments/Boards/Undertakings of State Government are directed to take necessary actions for use of Aadhaar based face authentication along with the processes currently being adopted for identification of beneficiaries in various public welfare schemes of the State Government.
